(By The Associated Press)
MOSCOW, Dec. 6 — Sixty-six "White Guards," enemies of the Soviet were executed Wednesday for "terroristic actions" against the officials of U. S. S. R.

The government announced that the action followed the assassination of Sergei Kiroff, high Communist official, but was not directly connected officially with his slaying.

The names of those executed were made public but among them were none of the leaders such as those who had figured prominently in the White Armies before the Bolsheviks won complete control.

(By The Associated Press)
ST. LOUIS, Dec. 6 — Dizzy Dean, star pitcher of the 1934 world Series, today signed a contract to pitch for the Cardinals next year at a salary between twenty and twenty-six thousand dollars. This was quite a jump compared with his former salary of eighty-five hundred dollars a year.

COMMITTEE IS INQUIRING ALL ABOUT ARMS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—The Senate Munitions Investigations Committee said they had new evidence that American arms manufacturers had brushed aside treaties and embargoes, to ship implements of war into Germany and China.

Committee members asserted that the evidence revealed a flagrant violation of the spirit of the Versailles Treaty, in sale of arms to Germany. The re-arming of the Reich, they added, was used as a lever to bring the military appropriations of other European countries up above their low levels.

The documents also show, they said, that American manufacturers had paid little heed to the American embargo on shipments of arms to China. They then used these sales, it was alleged to sell more products to Japan.

FORMER PRESIDENT TAKES SLAM SENATE ARMS INVESTIGATION

(By The Associated Press)
PALO ALTO, Calif., Dec. 6—The responsibility for the failure of the 1925 Geneva Convention to control the international shipment of arms, was placed on the United States Senate, by former President Herbert Hoover and his arm conference which figured in the munitions investigations and which called for a prior international convention on arms in general in Europe.

The present investigation is called for the purpose of giving a hearing on the manufacturers views as to the methods of discrimination between sporting arms and war arms. Hoover said that the failure of the Senate in regards to the Geneva Arms Conference had the effect of nullifying the work done to curb the manufacture of munitions.

UNITED STATES STANDS SQUARELY FOR NAVAL TREATIES U. S. POLICY

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Dec. 6—In the first public statement of the United States policy, since the tri-power naval conference began, Norman H. Davis, U. S. Ambassador at large, said that the abandonment of the Washington and London Naval Treaties "would lead to international suspicion and costly competition with no real security advantage to any country."

The statement is regarded as a warning to Japan and was made before the American Correspondents Association at a luncheon held here today. Davis declared:

"The American Government stands for the continuance of the principals of these two treaties." He also announced for the first time, that President Roosevelt had proposed "a substantial all-around reduction in naval armaments."

FEDERAL BUILDING FOR NOME NOW RECEIVING MUCH CONSIDERATION

Word received by N. Lester Troast, Architect for the Office of Indian Affairs, regarding the proposed construction of a new Federal Building in Nome, carries a wealth of good cheer and confidence to this city.

Mr. Troast was especially directed to furnish the government authorities in Washington, D. C., with data and information necessary in the planning of a new federal structure. Various suggestions and estimates regarding building and other details of construction have already been sent in by Mr. Troast and the authorities in Washington have now notified that certain other information regarding particular details of ground and engineering data are desired.

Word from the Director of Engineering of the Public Works Administration stated that it was the apparent intention of the Treasury Department to construct a two story federal building in Nome next spring occupying the Federal block.

Plans and estimates on a proposed building already sent in have received very favorable consideration. The type of two story building referred to would be, according to the plans about 100 feet long by 135 feet wide, housing all the federal agencies of the Second Division, of which Nome is the headquarters. It was estimated that the cost would be about $275,000 with an additional $50,000.00 for engineering. These figures were also declared to be receiving the favorable consideration of the authorities. The estimates sent into Washington were all on concrete construction, but today no definite report has been made public as to whether the building will be concrete or frame. However, efforts for a concrete construction are being pushed enthusiastically.

Many other cities in Alaska have concrete structures which denote progress and foresight. Why shouldn't Nome? With about fifteen federal agencies having their offices in Nome, serving as the headquarters for the Second Judicial Division of this Territory, a permanent, well-constructed concrete building would be a necessity that would solve many of the building problems of this locality.

Included in the federal departments having offices in Nome are the following agencies, the names of which were sent into Washington, when plans were first mentioned for the construction of a new federal building: The U. S. District Court and Federal Judge, the U. S. District Attorney, U. S. Marshal, U. S. Clerk of the District Court, U. S. Jail, Postoffice, U. S. Reindeer Service, U. S. Commissioner, Alaska Road Commission, U. S. Customs, U. S. Coast Guard, U. S. Weather Bureau, U. S. Signal Corps, Inspector Department of Aeronautics, Federal Emergency Relief Administration, Territorial Office. Included in some of the departments are various other details and positions which are taken care of.

This list makes an imposing array of federal administration in Alaska. The plan as introduced would include offices in the Federal Building for these agencies, together with vaults and other necessary office measures.

As the plans and estimates are still in a preliminary stage, a conclusive report is not as yet available, nor is it entirely definite that such plans have been settled. However, the indications are so strongly favorable that subsequent approval and "earmarking" will undoubtedly follow soon.

STATES RUSSIA IS ALARMED AT FRENCH MOVE

(By The Associated Press)
GENEVA, Dec. 6 — Alarmed at the prospects of a close understanding between France and Germany, Russia asked France today not to conclude any special political accord with another nation, pending the fate of the projected pact of Eastern Europe security.

Russia was described by League sources as fearing that isolation for herself, would result from any Franco-German political accord.

It was understood that France had agreed she would not make any special bi-lateral political treaties without consulting Russia.
